TWO LACKAWACK WORKERS DIE IN AUTO CRASH

Two in Hospital, One in 'Clink' as Party's Aftermath

Walter Dunham, 31, Held for Assault in Second Degree; Newburgh Man as Drunken Driver

Furnishes Bail

Sam Rosoff Hires Counsel and Gives Bail for Two Arrested

Employees of the Rosoff Construction Co., engaged in building one of the New York city water projects at Lackawack, enjoyed a dinner party Thursday evening in McCabe's Restaurant on Wall street, which wound up with two men in the Kingston Hospital, one of them charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, and a third man under arrest on a charge of second degree assault.

Walter D. Dunham, 31, of 30 Otis street, RFD 2, construction superintendent, is charged with second degree assault, while John H. Foster, 35, of 428 Liberty street, Newburgh, is charged with operating an automobile that crashed into a parked trailer-tractor on Broadway.

Charged With Assault
Dunham is charged with assaulting Lawrence S. Penland, also employed by Rosoff on the Lackawack project. It was thought at first that Penland had suffered a skull fracture, but an X-ray taken at the hospital this morning showed that he was not as seriously injured as at first thought.

Both Dunham and Foster were arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court this morning. They were represented by Attorney Roscoe V. Elsworth, who had been retained by Sam Rosoff, head of the construction company, to represent them in court.

At the request of Mr. Elsworth both cases were adjourned for two weeks, and bail fixed at $500 each which was furnished by Mr. Rosoff.

Police Are Called
It was at 10:30 o'clock Thursday evening that the police department received three calls from McCabe's Restaurant to the effect that there was a fight in progress. Officers Hess and Howard were sent to the restaurant and broke up the affray. No arrests were made at the time.

Crashed Into Tractor
At 12:30 o'clock this morning he police were called to Broadway and East Chester street where an automobile had crashed into the rear of a parked tractor-trailer owned by Jefferson McAlister of Little Falls, with Harrison Kimball as chauffeur.

Foster, who was said to be riding alone in his car, was taken to the Kingston Hospital by Arthur Hoffman of German street, who was passing at the time of the crash.

He suffered a severe cut on the hip, and remained at the hospital until brought over to police headquarters to be booked on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated. At headquarters Foster complained of pains in his chest and after he was arraigned before Judge Cahill and released on bail he was taken back to the hospital by Dr. Joseph Jacobson for a further physical examination.

Police Are Called Again
At 1:47 o'clock this morning the police department received a call from Jack Feyer's restaurant on Wall street, where they found Lawrence S. Penland had been injured and knocked down. He was taken to the Kingston Hospital where it was thought he had suffered a skull fracture.

The police arrested Dunham, charging him with assault in the second degree, in striking Penland with his fist and knocking him to the floor.

Sam Rosoff Appears
Sam Rosoff, head of the construction, appeared at police headquarters before his men were arraigned in court. He told the istings Are Being Made in Bronze for Horses on Finnish Front

Grove City, Pa., Feb. 23 (AP)—The Grove City Brass and Bronze company announced it is making stoves to fill an order for 4,000 brass boots for horses in the Finnish armies.

Company officials said the boots, of their kind ever made, are to protect the animals from a roving gas that collects on the ground. The gas attacks the hooves, crippling the horses. The boots are 16 inches high, edged with rawhide.

Wilson Attitude Contrasts With Roosevelt Action

State Department Files Show Wilson Shunned 'Chronic' Criticism of Reported Zeppelin Raids, but Roosevelt Sent Protests

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt's condemnation of aerial bombing of civilian populations, state department documents showed today, contrasts sharply with President Wilson's attitude during the World War.

Publication of the papers of Robert Lansing, secretary of state under Wilson, disclosed that the latter refused to make formal protests against bombings of Antwerp and London by German dirigibles.

The farthest he would go was to drop a hint to the American

'Ouija' Politicians Say F. D. R.'s Eye Is on Third Term

But, They Argue, Roosevelt Won't Break Silence at Least Until He Has Been Renominated

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP)—Some strategists for Democratic candidates, after sessions with the ouija board, predict that President Roosevelt will not break his third term silence until he actually has been renominated. These men, when they talk freely, say they are convinced that if the President does not speak a positive denial in advance of the convention, the third term swell will sweep him into a nomination. That would demonstrate his hold upon the Democratic party, they argue, and would be the proper time for him to name his successor.

A dramatic appearance before a national convention after such a nomination, by a man come to reject the crown, would enable him to put across his successor with a minimum of party dispute. At least, that is the way some of the strategic guessers are beginning to figure.

They can provoke a quick argument by throwing before some other Democrats the statement that the President can get a third term simply by keeping his mouth

Roosevelt Plans Harrisburg Visit

President Will Dedicate New Tunnel Turnpike in Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt is coming back to Republican Pennsylvania next Independence Day to help dedicate the $70,000,000 Harrisburg-Pittsburgh tunnel turnpike, and Democratic leaders hope that history repeats itself.

His personal appearance here in 1936 presaged a Democratic triumph, the "Little New Deal" administration of George H. Earle ruled then, and Roosevelt held the state with a 660,000 majority vote over Alfred M. Landon.

Now, however, the Republicans are back in the saddle and the governor is Arthur H. James, whom some friends have proclaimed as an "ideal" candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Both President Roosevelt and his widely-traveled wife have accepted invitations to attend the toll highway dedication ceremonies, only 12 days before the Democrats meet in Chicago to nominate their presidential candidate.

Although Mr. Roosevelt has refused to intimate whether he will seek a third term, David L. Lawrence, Democratic chairman of Pennsylvania, has announced the President's name will be on the ballot here April 23.

Among the few top-ranking members of the party in Pennsylvania opposed to another term for the President is Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man and chairman of the turnpike commission which invited Mr. Roosevelt to come here.

Jones is being considered as a possible "harmony" candidate of factions opposed to re-nomination of Senator Guffey.

The 160-mile turnpike, first link in a proposed system of nation-wide "super-highways," is being constructed with federal money.

Surrenders Mail

Armed marines forced Capt. Charles A. Lorber (above), in command of a Pan American clipper flying between the United States and Lisbon, Portugal, to give up 2,600 pounds of U. S. mail for censorship when he landed his ship at Bermuda en route. The incident was disclosed in U. S. senate discussions of British mail censorship.

Residents Warned To Protect Pets From Rabid Dog

Health Officer Says There Is Danger Disease Animal Might Come Into Kingston

Dog owners of Kingston should keep a closer watch over their animals as it is highly possible that a stray dog, afflicted with rabies, may wander into the Kingston area, warned Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer of the city, today.

Dr. Sanford said that rabies was prevalent in southern Ulster county where several towns have been quarantined for several months. The danger, said Dr. Sanford, is that an afflicted animal may stray into the Kingston area and bite another dog. For that reason, he said, dog owners would be wise to keep their dogs from roaming the streets.

In discussing rabies with Dr. Harold Clarke, veterinarian of the health department, he said that owners of dogs need not be alarmed about rabies for it is not a disease borne with the winds.

The infection, he said, must be transmitted from another animal. If a pet dog while being exercised on the leash should be bitten by a rabid dog the procedure may be used as for humans, namely the nitric acid method of sterilization.

Such prompt treatment, he said, is wonderfully effective, if administered during the first 12 hours following the bite. Dogs do not go "mad" suddenly, he said, there is always a beginning period.

If the dog refuses the meal or acts a bit strange it may be due to many things not even remotely associated with rabies. Just keep the animal confined, he advised, for 12 hours, and don't try offering water or refusing it.

That is not a diagnostic symptom. With a house pet failure to respond to commands from a well known person in the household might be considered strange, but such a pet would probably react the same way with a broken leg. Preventative inoculation against rabies, he said, has been practiced in Japan with wonderful results.

New Jersey Has Plan to Call Paupers Males Who Are on Relief Three Years

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 23 (AP)—A rigid relief regulatory program that would pin the pauper label on male clients of three-year duration was urged on the New Jersey legislature today by the head of a committee it named to study the state's tangled problem of the needy.

The state constitution bars paupers from voting or holding public office.

Recommended also by Col. G. Barrett Glover, director of the committee's eight-month investigation of relief, was abolishment of cash payments and limiting of public assistance to orders "for articles essential to the maintenance of health."

The orders would be redeemable only at licensed stores which would not be permitted to grant relief clients:

Tobacco in any form, soft drinks, alcoholic beverages, candy, food for pets or livestock, motor

Russians Say 675 Finnish Defenses Have Been Downed

Leningrad Report Declares 21 More Forts Are Taken on Karelian Isthmus by Soviet

Reds Celebrate

Moscow Holds Ceremonies While Biggest Army Is Pounding Finns

Moscow, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Red army reported the capture of the 675th Mannerheim line fortification today but failed to fulfill the expectation of its admirers by taking the Finnish city of Viipuri as a 22nd anniversary feat.

A Leningrad military command communique reported the capture of "21 defensive fortifications, including 15 iron and concrete artillery forts" on the Karelian Isthmus. This added to the 654 previously reported taken.

Lecturers in Moscow previously had expressed confidence the army's birthday celebration today would coincide with an announcement that the Mannerheim line had been broken and Viipuri, key objective of 85 days of warfare, had fallen.

Hammers at Viipuri
The Red army, largest in the world, continued hammering at Finnish defenses by land and air although the communique said a blizzard had restricted aerial warfare to reconnoitering flights.

While the Russian army originally was built upon a defensive theory only, it is now represented as engaged in carrying out the idea introduced by Marshal Klemment Voroshiloff of defense by fighting on enemy territory.

Russians said the march into Poland last year and the present Finnish campaign were examples of defense by offensive strategy. Organized in 1918, the Red army was first composed of workers, sailors and professional revolutionaries to guard the republic against attacks by white armies and interventionists forces.

Gradually the army was enlarged and mechanized. The original soldier's oath of allegiance to the Communist cause of "liberating" the world's workers was changed in 1938 to allegiance to superiors.

Would Justify Time
Russian spokesmen sought to justify the time elapsed in the campaign against Finland by comparing the capture of the "hundred" Finnish forts and pillboxes with the lack of similar progress by the French and British on the western front.

Meanwhile, the magazine Communist International, organ of the Communist International, asserted that war in Europe gave the "rapacious" United States a great advantage in the domination of Central and South America.

"Rapacious Yankee imperialism directly threatens the independence of Latin America. The resistance of its masses now is a greater obstacle blocking the monopoly of capitalist United States than British imperialism," the Communist said.

The magazine said in another article the slogan, "The Yanks won't be coming," was popular in the United States among workers, farmers and students and meant that Americans would not come to the aid of France or Finland.

War Clouds Spread Over Scandinavia

Appearance of British warships off Petsamo, Finland, and Murmansk, Russia (No. 1 on upper map) raised Finland's hope of direct help from the allies despite continued Russian pressure on Finland's Mannerheim line, a cusp of which is shown in the lower map. Sweden ordered its anti-aircraft batteries to open fire on any foreign military plane cited as a result of the bombing of Pajala (No. 2). Probable routing of supplies England is sending to Finland is through Trondheim, Norway, (No. 3). One of the hot spots of Russian bombing in Finland was Sortavala (No. 4). Finns said they had repulsed a Russian attack near Kamara (No. 5), their first admission the Reds had penetrated Mannerheim line defenses that far.

Farm Leaders Are All for Spending

Senators Suggest Later Savings in Effort to Add $200,000 to Act

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP)—Senate farm leaders developed a spend-now-and-save-later strategy today in their efforts to add $200,000,000 for parity payments to the House-approved agriculture appropriation bill.

These senators originally had planned to delay consideration of the $722,001,084 measure until record defense appropriations have been acted on. They had hoped that sufficient cuts could be made in the defense program to finance the additional farm payments.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.) announced today, however, that an appropriations subcommittee would begin hearings on the agriculture measure Monday, with Secretary Wallace as the first witness.

Associates of Wallace said, however, that he planned a determined fight for the marketing certificate plan as a permanent substitute for parity payments.

Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.) said there was no doubt that parity payments (to give farmers 1910-1914 purchasing power) would be voted by the Senate.

He declared he had President Roosevelt's assurances that he would not disapprove.

Another farm state senator, speaking anonymously, told reporters that by increasing the farm appropriation now the agriculture bloc would bring added pressure for a curtailment of defense outlays.

"When we get them under the gun of raising taxes or increasing the $45,000,000,000 debt limit," he said, "then they probably will be willing to economize on defense."

"It will be easier to effect the economies after the farmers get their money than before."

Blockade Is Reported

Copenhagen, Feb. 23 (AP)—A British-French warship squadron began today a blockade of the northern Russian coast, the newspaper Berlingske Tidende reported, while unconfirmed rumors circulated that a clash with the Soviet Arctic navy already had been precipitated. It said the ships were strung out for a considerable distance along the Arctic coast to prevent shipment of Russian supplies to Germany and to halt any possible attempt to deliver Russian submarines to the German navy. Presence of allied vessels in that far northern vicinity was confirmed yesterday.

Paris, Feb. 23 (AP)—France's first war "ace" was decorated today for having shot down four German planes. Sergeant Edouard Sales won a citation and the Croix De Guerre.

French Say 'Subs' Renewing Activity

High Command Declares 'New Wave' of Raids on Allied Ships

Paris, Feb. 23 (AP)—France's high command today reported a "new wave" of German submarine activity operating against allied warships and merchant shipping in the North Sea.

Naval experts expressed the belief the force was composed of craft recently constructed and sent out as soon as crews could be assembled to man them.

French sources said the submarines appeared several days ago but the number and fighting power of the group remained to be determined.

The belief is generally held in naval circles that the German submarine fleet works in relays with one group in port for refitting while another is at sea.

The western front was quiet outside of artillery fire in the regions both to the west and east of the Saar river. Aerial forces on both sides fulfilled numerous reconnaissance and photographic missions but no engagements were reported.

'Day of Aid'
Early today the French Chamber of Deputies voted to hold a "national day of aid" for Finland and last night Vice Premier Camille Chautemps declared to Parliament that the French "will not fail" in their "duty" to the small Baltic country.

The chamber did not set the date for the day of aid. Observers expected special efforts would be made to collect funds and useful objects for Finnish use.

The chamber's vote was taken to demonstrate that "all French opinion" is behind the French and British government's action in sending aid to the Finns.

Addressing the annual Washington Day dinner of the American Club in Paris, Chautemps said Finland "has proved the almost invincible force of a proud and courageous people who do not wish to die."

Maynard Barnes, first secretary of the United States embassy, stressed President Roosevelt's opinion "is behind the French and British government's action in sending aid to the Finns."

Accident Occurs at Early Hour

John Moran, Gardiner Resident, and White Plains Man Are Found Inside Car

Strikes Tree

Auto Plunges Down Steep Bank Beside River Near Walden

John Moran, 20, of Gardiner, and Leroy Edward Markey, 30, of White Plains, were found dead in their automobile shortly after 2 o'clock this morning on the Walden-Walkill highway, near the Nelson Tears property in Orange county. The car left the road and plunged down a 20-foot embankment crashing into a tree on the banks of the Walkill river.

Discovery of the bodies was made by a passing truck driver who saw the car at the foot of the embankment and investigated. The truckman, whose name was not ascertained, dragged both bodies up onto the highway and then called Dr. Stevens of Walden, and the State Troopers in Orange county and Trooper Andrew Klein of New Paltz were notified by telephone and responded.

Dead When Found
Both men were dead when found. Moran's head was crushed in, both legs and neck were broken, while Markey's head was also crushed in and he had suffered body injuries.

Both men were employed on Shaft 4 of the New York city water works project near Ireland Corners. Just when the accident occurred is now known, but the time was fixed at about 2 o'clock this morning.

When found both men were still in the wrecked automobile. At the point where the car shot off the road and down the embankment the highway winds along the banks of the Walkill river.

Leaves Wife, Baby

Markey has been making his home in Walden for nine months while employed on the water works job. He is survived by his wife and a three-months-old baby. Markey's body was removed to the morgue of Undertaker Gilbert S. Millsbaugh in Walden.

Moran was a son of Frank and the late Helen May Lucy Moran, and was making his home with his father in Gardiner. He was a graduate of the New Paltz High School, a member of the class of 1937. Surviving beside the father are two sisters, Helen and Jean Ann Moran, and two brothers, Henry and Frank Moran, Jr., all of Gardiner; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lucy, of Gardiner, and several uncles and aunts.

Funeral services for Moran will be held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock in St. Charles Church in Gardiner, where a Mass will be offered. Burial will be in the cemetery at Gardiner.

Witnesses Parade

London, Feb. 23 (AP)—King George VI accompanied by Prime Minister Chamberlain with his ever-present umbrella, inspected 760 veterans of the battle of Montevideo today in a parade before the greatest crowd of cheering Britons since the coronation. Londoners who had waited more than five hours broke police lines to give the men of the cruisers Exeter and Ajax a tumultuous greeting.

Driver Arrested

Wichita, Kas., Feb. 23 (AP)—Detective Constable Van Wagon glanced out of the window, then gasped. Out of the dusk came a rapidly driven car, moving backwards and with no lights. The backward motorist was charged with drunken driving—without a license, too.

Soviet Steamer Is Halted by British Cruiser at Dardanelles Gateway

Istanbul, Feb. 23 (AP)—The Soviet Russian steamer Svanetia, 4,125 tons, was stopped and searched by a British cruiser near the southern entrance to the Dardanelles, it was learned today.

Two Italian freighters also were reported held and searched at Istanbul in the first such general British action in these waters.

The Svanetia, whose home port is Odessa, on the Black Sea, was in the Aegean Sea between the islands of Lemnos and Tenedos when halted.

Fink Pleads Guilty Today

Delhi, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP)—James Fink, 22-year-old farmhand, pleaded guilty today to second degree murder and second degree arson in the slaying January 14 of a Masonville, N. Y., farm family of three, and was sentenced to a minimum of 70 years in Attica State Prison.

Aubrey Scrump, 20, Fink's companion on an attempted automobile flight from the farm of Frank Toed, Fink's employer, pleaded guilty to second degree arson and was sentenced to Elmira Reformatory.

The pair was captured in Reading, Pa., January 17.

Slums of Smaller Cities Face 'Clean-Up' Program

Awakening of smaller communities to realization that slums exist in their midst as well as in the larger cities is evidenced by their increasing participation in the USHA low-rent housing program, according to Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing authority.

Twenty-eight cities and towns with populations of approximately 10,000 or less already have organized local housing authorities for co-operation with the USHA. Straus has announced. Seven of these communities have obtained commitments for USHA loans to finance 10 proposed projects. Two, including one with less than 2,500 population, have started construction of their projects, while three others have had USHA loan contracts approved by President Roosevelt.

"When the United States housing act was before congress two years ago," said Straus, "it was generally believed that the large cities would be the principal beneficiaries. Few small cities and towns had begun seriously to look into their housing problem."

"Today the picture is quite different. A large and growing number of smaller cities and even towns and villages and strictly rural communities have organized active housing authorities. In most cases, also, these local authorities have the ardent support of their local governments and of local business, trades, civic and social groups—from bankers and other business men to labor unions and welfare workers."

Robot Is Designed For Landing Plane

Experiments Under Way May Solve Difficulty.

DAYTON, OHIO.—Two army air corps officers at Wright field are conducting seemingly impossible experiments with an airplane that lands automatically.

The success of the experiments may mean pilotless landings for the air liners of the future.

Already their experimental plane has made many successful automatic landings, but they state that the new device is still imperfect and they are constantly making changes and improvements.

The first landing was made in August, 1937. Capt. Carl Crane and George V. Holloman with Raymond Stout, a civilian engineer, had just begun their experiment, but they tried it out and everything worked perfectly.

To effect the landings without the "human touch," the three inventors have combined the principles of "blind flying apparatus and the "gyro pilot."

"Blind flying" instruments are based on the radio directional beam and compass. The "gyro pilot" keeps a plane on even keel by utilizing gravitational principles.

The experimenters have been using a military plane that is similar to a transport ship. Their goal is to combine the radio and gyro instruments and make a mechanical device which will duplicate all movements of a pilot in landings.

The automatic landing system is intended to eliminate "pilot error" in landings. An air-liner pilot today must keep an eye on many instruments even on a routine flight, and if one is not in order a faulty landing may result.

Crane and Holloman have been making automatic landings several times a week. Until they reach the airport they are guided by radio compass. Then the automatic landing machinery is turned on and the plane lands by itself.

The work of the experimenters has not gone unobserved. Last year they were awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for their experimental work.

Farm Windmill Devised To Give Steady Current

ATLANTA, GA.—William B. Scott, a radio operator at the Atlanta airport, has obtained a patent on a windmill device that will enable farmers to enjoy modern electrical conveniences at a total cost of less than $200.

Scott says his machine will turn at a constant rate of speed regardless of the velocity of the wind, generating the standard 110-volt alternating current.

Basic features of the invention are a variable pitch propeller that is adjusted to lower the speed of the windmill during a high wind and a generator that will produce the 110-volt alternating current and a lower voltage direct current.

The direct current will keep a battery charged and also act as a motor to keep the speed of the windmill constant during low wind velocities.

"The system is completely automatic," Scott said, "and when once installed, a standard electric supply is available from the wind without attention and at little cost. The first cost is estimated to be no greater than any other farm power unit."

20 Escape Death

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP)—Twenty men, including 18 Albany firemen, narrowly escaped death today when part of the roof and wall of a garage housing 70 automobiles caved in during a spectacular fire. Seven automobiles were crushed by tons of debris and the salvage of 25 others was in doubt.

Commission Will Launch Program Against Utilities

The Securities and Exchange Commission is scheduled to take action within a week that will actively initiate a movement to bring about integration of the great utility holding companies under Section 11B of the Utility Act of 1935, the famous "death sentence."

The commission will launch its program by issuance of "show cause" orders against all major utility companies within seven days. The orders will not outline any plan for the holding company systems but will throw upon the companies themselves the burden of submitting plans and proving that their systems do not embrace more than one interconnected and coordinated power generating and distributing set-up.

There are certain narrow exceptions to the provision. Hearings in the cases probably will be prolonged, extensive affairs and may not get under way until mid-year.

Packard Motor Car Co. and Nash-Kelvinator Corp. are rushing plans for smaller cars in the $750 price field. One of the companies has made no final decision as to when production will get underway, but the other may introduce its new low-price car by late summer. The companies have been encouraged to take this action, which has been under consideration for a year or so, by the better than anticipated demand for the new Studebaker "Champion."

Stocks on the London market advanced Thursday in quiet trading. On the Amsterdam Bourse trading lagged as a result of the recent losses in Dutch shipping and a less encouraging view of the international situation. The Paris Bourse opened briskly and prices rose on fair volume.

U. S. Rubber Co. will establish a footwear and automobile tire manufacturing plant at Buenos Aires October 1 because of high import duties now imposed by Argentina on American products of that type.

The dollar volume of sales of 21,495 independent retail stores in 34 states during January totaled $200,922,970, a drop from December's $336,955,245, the peak month of the year, but a gain of 7.6 per cent over January, 1939.

Standardized Partitions
If you are planning a house interior remodeling it is well to remember that you can buy standardized wood partitions in all popular woods and finishes. Such partitions frequently come in two heights—7 feet 4 inches and 8 feet 6 inches. Each is made up of three units with the space between the top of the third unit and the ceiling filled with a soundproof transom. All units are 36 inches wide. Individual panels are 2 1/2 inches thick, built on frames with two 1/2-inch layers of acoustical material on the inner side, and are embraced with two three-ply layers of plywood. Doors are soundproof with the base panel water and mop-proof. Partitions of this type are easily assembled and made rigid with screws and full-length posts of special construction. Wiring goes through the end posts at either the upper corners or the base.

About the Folks

Alderman Paul A. Zucca, who has been ill for more than a week with a severe attack of grip, was once more on duty at the Flanagan store today.

Mrs. Michael Mattia of Lake Katrine and Miss Florence Shea of Lucas avenue, have returned from a vacation spent in Miami, Florida. Miss Shea will resume her duties with the Artistic Beauty Salon on Monday.

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—Stocks

angled a bit downward today despite minor rising efforts. Small losses were shaved by fractions toward the final hour, but trading was at such slow pace that upward trends in scattered issues made little headway. Transactions were at a rate approaching 800,000 shares.

Only a couple of well known issues, Loft and Seaboard Air Lines, saw much action, and that was all downhill. Others in the dip included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical, Caterpillar, American Telephone, Southern Railway, Standard Oil of N. J., Eastman, Union Carbide and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit.

Among the restorers to this trend were du Pont, Fajardo Sugar, Douglas and Haves. Bonds were uneven. Commodities gained, with wheat at Chicago and elsewhere reaching new highs due, to a large extent, to a temperature drop in winter wheat areas. Foreign bourses were fairly steady.

Depressed in the uneven curb were Gulf Oil, Neli Corp., and Wright Hargraves. Hornell and Eureka Pipe Line were up.

Windows Are Important In Appearance of Home

Windows are all-important in controlling the outside appearance of a home and its inside decorative effects, as well as contributing to the comfort and happiness of the occupants, according to a recent issue of a leading builders magazine.

Some of the newest home building ideas for cutting costs and increasing quality apply to windows. And that is fortunate since the public taste seems to be more and more toward glass, cheerful interiors and sunshine. Analyzing the work of some of the country's most successful operative builders brings out the fact that they are practically designing their best selling houses around its windows. In their most profitable homes the windows are something more than mere openings in the wall. They have a far greater role than that of letting light in and keeping out wind and rain and snow. They are utilized as one of the most effective of sales points in focusing attention of the prospect, whether he's a buyer or a renter.

Picture windows decide many a home sale by framing a favorite view. Use of peach colored plate glass often adds to the beauty of a scene. And a picture window over the sink or a corner window may be the means of lifting that kitchen to a new plane of beauty and cheer—the difference between a domestic workshop of drudgery and an inviting unit of the home.

The funeral will be held from the Jensen and Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs street, Monday morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock at St. Peter's Church where a requiem Mass will be offered for the repose of his soul. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery.

Indian Medicine Men Charge Doctor's Fee

Western America's Paiute Indian medicine men of California, or shamans, as they are called in their native language, have now become so modernized that they charge regular doctor's fees for casting out evil spirits and other native medical treatment.

Furthermore, so strictly modern are these shamans in this respect, that their fee is $5, where formerly they were glad to accept a few seeds.

This fact was established by Dr. Isabel T. Kelly of the anthropological department of the University of California, who has completed an extensive study of the few remaining tribes of the Paiute Indians in Nevada and southern California.

The bulk of her information was gathered from the tribes that still exist in the vicinity of Las Vegas, Nev.

The shaman practitioners who have become modernized to the extent of $5 fees for treatment were those of the Kaibab group in the high plateaus and the Grand canyon region of Utah.

Flemming Asserts Washington's View Would Work Now

Hon. Harry H. Fleming, speaking before the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday in observance of Washington's Birthday, told the members that philosophy of the first President of the United States could still be applied to the present day and that the advice of President George Washington to keep out of foreign entanglements was sound advice and highly applicable to our present day and age.

Once the armed forces of the United States had crossed the waters to fight upon foreign soil for a cause which it was then hoped would make future wars impossible but again today the world is becoming involved in a war equally as serious as that in which we took part in the hope that it had been a war to end war. In the face of that sad experience he advised that the present generation heed the warning Washington issued at the time he was President when he advised the people of this nation to keep out of foreign entanglements. By so doing, he said, we could set an example to other nations and show that our nation could prosper and advance on a foundation of peace and righteousness.

In our public schools of today, he said, we get but little of the lives of our national heroes. We hear about their connections with events of their time and age but little of the real lives of the great men like Washington and Lincoln. Later in life the biography of these national heroes may become very interesting to us but he held that more of the lives of the men should be learned in schools. Rather than the problems of the nation which so much is heard of, he advised that more of the life of the hero should be taught. If more of the lives of these great national heroes could be taught the generation there would be less "isms" in the land, said Surrogate Fleming.

The lives of present day "powers" in foreign lands are brought to the front and dictators whose uncertain rule now goes on are portrayed as men of power, even though the future may bring ruin to their lands, while the lives of past American heroes whose lives and whose policies have proven through the trial of time to have been sound seem to go un-sung. He advocated the teaching of more of the lives of these real heroes so that the present generation may see the soundness of their acts and their judgment, rather than dwelling upon the discussion of the untried and dangerous ideas of present day experiments.

George Washington was a born leader, a man who was so constituted as to be able to lead the colonies against the mother country in a fight for independence. Through this long struggle, often under discouraging reverses, Washington gave of his time and his wealth to bring to this country a right to freedom. At the close of the war for independence Washington had hoped to gain retirement but was sought for the presidency and after his first term he again was forced to serve a second term but when the call for third term came he refused to consider it and was permitted a brief retirement which had been long delayed.

Mr. Fleming said that many of the policies which were advocated by George Washington were sound policies which still held today. Were some of these policies of his generation heeded today the speaker said he believed the United States would profit greatly.

President Pratt Boice presided at the meeting. Secretary R. Frederic Chidsey called attention to the Inter-Club meeting and bowling tournament at Schenectady on April 17. Incidentally it was announced that Mr. and Mrs. Chidsey would be observing their 25th wedding anniversary on February 26. Congratulations were extended by the club. Treasurer Harry Ensign was absent because of illness. Paul Zucca was again back leading the singing after a 10-day illness and Danny Bittner presided at the piano.

Guests in attendance were Robert G. Groves and Harold Keator. Harry Rigby, Jr., the "baby member" of the club was present and welcomed by the membership.

suits. Such an injection may be obtained from a veterinarian.

From the available records, said Dr. Clarke, it would seem that such inoculations can do no harm. Certainly these inoculations cannot produce rabies for the treatment is put out only by laboratories under the supervision of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

If a dog develops symptoms of rabies it should not be shot but the animal should be confined until a definite diagnosis can be made by a veterinarian.

Dogs having rabies usually die in one week from the onset.

Buck Will Fight His Extradition

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 23 (AP).—Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, today mapped a fight against extradition to Missoula, Mont., where he is charged with attempted extortion, a felony. The charge is an outgrowth of a court fight over music royalties. Buck, at liberty under $10,000 bond, was scheduled to appear at 9:30 a. m. (11:30 a. m. EST) before Justice Harry Westfall for hearing on a fugitive warrant.

County Attorney Edward T. Dussault of Missoula said charges against Buck and other ASCAP officials are based upon their request by registered mail that radio stations, theatres and others pay certain sums to ASCAP or have revocation of licenses to play music owned by ASCAP.

"It's a case of the law being used for selfish interests," Buck responded. "Montana has not paid an author or composer in the United States for three years. It is unwilling to pay for music, the raw material which keeps the radio microphones operating."

The answer served on Buck here is the same as one on which New York authorities recently refused to act.

In addition to attempted extortion, Buck is charged with attempting to obtain money under false pretenses and conspiracy to extort, both misdemeanors.

Gov. Roy Ayers of Montana said he would conduct a hearing in Missoula today to determine whether an extradition request should be issued.

First in the Hearts of its Countrymen

YOU don't have to look farther than the nearest parking lot to see how the public has taken to this 1940 Buick.

Although it is not the largest seller, polls of public opinion mark it clearly as the car "first in the hearts of its countrymen."

On general appearance, for instance, Buick gets better than a 19% vote as best looking, to 11% for the Number Two car.

Its thrifty Dynaflex power plant, now balanced after assembly, gives it twice as many Best-of-the-Bunch votes as any other, as does its chassis construction.

With soft and easy coil springs all around it's only natural that some two and a half times as many people pick Buick as best for ride. And a two to one vote on room is understandable in view of the SUPER's close-to-five-feet front seat.

But the really satisfying thing to us is the way people size up Buick's value.

Half again as many people pick

The model illustrated is the Buick SUPER model 51 four-door touring sedan $1129 delivered at Flint, Mich. White sidewall tires additional.*

Buick as best buy as pick any other. And three out of five who rate Buick No. 1 say it's the value that gives it the edge.

So it's not surprising when polls show more people wanting Buick than want any other car—and when Buick's midwinter sales hit new peaks.

And shouldn't that, in turn, logically suggest: better get yours now—and be sure of having it?

"Best buy's Buick!"

RUSSIAN EQUALITY

Within the bonds of their slavery to a ruthless dictator, the Russian people seem to have a sort of freedom. They have nothing to say about their government, but they have more social equality than some democracies.

An American professor of political science, while warning Americans not to travel on Soviet ships if they want comfort, gives these interesting details. The crews are on a social level not only with each other but with the passengers. Oilers and deck hands, when off duty, mingle freely with occupants of the first-class cabins.

"Passengers stand in line at the ship's barber shops with the crew," he says, and adds this surprising statement: "No matter what kind of work the Soviet sailor does, he appears to insist on a neat haircut, a close daily shave, perfumed hair and a careful manicure."

Such conduct may be mere pose or bravado. But anyway it shows an incredible change from the old days, when Russian sailors were bearded, unshorn and greasy and their vessels were famous for their filthy condition. Details may be found in Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast."

It may be conceded that the Reds have made progress in sanitation, and that is all to the good. They have also learned to read. But there is less benefit in that, because their reading includes so many things that "ain't so."

COMRADES IN PROPAGANDA

While most people have been debating the amount of help Hitler and Stalin might give each other, one point has been overlooked. Eugene Lyons, editor of the American Mercury, says Stalin's greatest aid to Hitler has been the propaganda machine perfected over many years and now put at the disposal of Germany.

"The Communist International has changed its party line at the dictation of Moscow," Mr. Lyons told a recent audience, "and has turned pro-Nazi. In the Communist press the world over there is no more attempt to placate the western democracies. All Communists have gone over to the Nazis' side. In this country they no longer say a word against Germany."

It might worry us if we had not already found that the Nazi and Communist propaganda defeats itself in free countries.

REMEDY FOR BLACKOUT

It is common knowledge in England that the blackouts have produced far more casualties than the war. Recent reports have told of more than 3,000 traffic killings. People in the dark, naturally enough, are always running into each other in cars or afout, or getting hurt by stumbling over things.

But now a remedy is suggested for the pedestrian, at least. Some ingenious reformer proposes that men's spats be treated with luminous paint and women's faces with luminous powder.

Frivolous London journalists are having some fun with the idea; but the British government might, and probably will, do worse. The plain fact seems to be that the idea's too sensible. If the problem's to be solved at all, they want something heroic.

WOMEN SOLDIERS

Women seem to be playing a bigger part in the Russo-Finnish war than ever before, at least in modern times. They do not seem, so far, to be doing any actual fighting, but they engage in collateral work hardly less important. This is probably true on both sides, but the work of the Finnish women is better known than the Russians'.

Women and girls there are engaged, of course, in the hospitals and the first-aid work back of the firing line. But they are far more than mere nurses. The "Lotta" girls not only drive ambulances as was done in the World War, but they carry stretchers, give first aid, operate field telephones, handle dispatches and do various other essential things immediately behind the firing lines and even within the fighting zone.

They also wear revolvers and know how to use them when necessary. And from present indications, thousands of them probably will be in the trenches before long, fighting side by side with their men.

This is coming to be "total war." The women are a large part of it. And they make good soldiers.

PURIFICATION

Here's another echo of a time forever gone—the strange days when women couldn't abide tobacco. A statement of "The Etiquette of Smoking" printed in 1865 said:

"The old maxim that the effect ceases with the cause does not apply to tobacco, the after-odor of which is often more disagreeable to non-smokers than the immediate result of its consumption. Hence a gentleman should purify himself thoroughly after smoking before venturing into ladies' society, and a room where gentlemen are accustomed to smoke should be carefully ventilated and pastilled before it is used by ladies."

Suppose, now, that father insisted on the family living-room being "carefully ventilated and pastilled" after mother has been using it for a ladies' bridge party.

Jay Franklin says the World War showed the "biological optimism" of the belligerents. They thought it was safe to waste those millions of dead and injured. Pessimism about such losses now might be a good peace influence.

"Recovery must be earned," says a business moralist. And here we've all thought we'd earned it over and over, and fate was just holding out on us.

PEP PILLS DURING COLLEGE EXAMS.

During the college examinations in my student days, I noticed one of the students with a most peculiar expression on his face and remarked to another student that Blank must be much afraid of the examinations. I was quietly informed that Blank was using a stimulating drug to brighten him up and keep him awake.

Many physicians and others were amazed to read last spring that students at universities in the United States and Canada were using stimulating drugs—pep pills—during examinations. This was done in some cases with full knowledge of the university authorities who "recognized" that as the students were likely to be nervous and upset, a pep pill would prevent them from collapsing during the examination.

A timely warning of the danger of the "pep pill" is to be found in the Journal of the American Medical Association from Coroner Lowell C. Smith, M.D., Lafayette, Indiana, who reports the death of a student during a written university examination. The cause of death was a greatly dilated heart. He had eaten a large meal just before the examination.

His examination paper, as far as he had completed it, was studied by the professor in the subject who had stated that the student "was writing a very good paper and had made very good progress in the examination during the hour which he had written." He was a good student, a splendid athlete, and had passed life insurance examinations less than a year before.

Dr. Smith points out the great mistake students and others make in using a stimulating drug when they are so fatigued—the usual condition during examinations.

"Four important factors figure prominently in this student's death. They are the large meal, the nervous tension of the examination, fatigue, and the pep pill. Probably no single one of these factors would have caused a sudden collapse and death in a healthy person such as the patient was, but when all were present at once, the situation was changed."

Since it is known that severe collapse can occur following use of "pep pills" when an individual is overtired, it is probable that it contributed to the collapse in this case.

The lesson is that with body and mind tensed and tired, there is always danger from the use of a stimulating drug.

Why Worry About Your Heart?

Geneva, Switzerland, (AP)—A pantheress from Berlin got a two weeks' vacation in Switzerland—all because she seemed too tough to be a lady.

Geneva's zoo ordered a male sent from Berlin to go with the female panther they already had. The animal that arrived was such a hard-boiled specimen that it was two weeks before Geneva zoo guards decided she wasn't a male after all. "We thought this one was just giving our lady some violent love pats," said the embarrassed Geneva guards as they caged the Berlin pantheress for the return trip to Berlin, "but she was just being tough after all."

The Berlin zoo has promised to send a real male as soon as possible.

Prague, (AP)—A new standard dictionary of the current Czech language is under preparation at the Czech Academy of Sciences and Arts, the completion of which is actively supported by the protectorate government. Prominent Czech linguists are at work sifting over six million documents relating to the peculiarities of their mother tongue.

A special commission is busy collecting all new words and phrases which were coined in the past years and have become inseparable part of modern Czech. To speed up the completion of this section of the new edition, the Czech Academy, in an appeal, invited the general public to help it facilitate its work by reporting new but truly Czech words.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

GOING BACK TO WORK

Babson Believes In Back-To-Farm Movement

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 23.—Naturally I get many letters from readers of this column. Just recently I received a most interesting letter from G. C. Konkler of Mena, Arkansas, telling of his personal experiences. He had lost his city job during the depression and had to decide between going back to the land or going onto relief. He chose the former and drifted to the enterprising town of Mena in the Ouachita Mountains, just a stone's throw from the Oklahoma line. There he and his family started again with absolutely nothing—just as did the Pilgrims when they landed on the shores of Massachusetts Bay in 1620.

Of course, his family had no money for movies, radio, or gasoline. They built their own hut of cast off boxes and other waste material on the outskirts of the town. He got a job for one dollar a day and the family lived upon it and saved money from the first week.

They lived on oatmeal, milk, tough meat, and greens. They slept on straw and made their own furniture—but they were healthy and happy. The children made their own clothes and went to school. When Spring came they planted a garden in which they all worked.

Then the father decided to rent a cheap vacant store—to sell goods when the chain stores were closed and the other merchants were at the movies. I will not go into more details, but in view of all the sensational and sentimental publicity being focused on tenant farmers as a result of John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," Mr. Konkler's story interested me very much. Hence, I wrote three leading people in Mena to see if what Mr. Konkler wrote me were true. They replied that every word was true.

I then asked Mr. Konkler to expand his ideas. Both he and I believe that the small farm offers a real opportunity to thousands now working on relief jobs. Developing and working the land would bring them more happiness, health, good living, and sound security than most of them will ever achieve in any other way. Today, too many families are just one pay check better off than they were several years ago. Surely any thinking person must know that something more durable must be tried to remedy conditions. All so far, have been merely shots in the arm to ease the pain.

Relief Killed Movement
In 1932, Mr. Konkler drove a $150 Ford 500 miles into the mountains of Arkansas. He found thousands of people out of jobs. Families, however, with just a little money left, were going back to the farms, making new lives for themselves, and liking it. They were blotting themselves from charity rolls and improving the general situation. Yet, most of such efforts collapsed when Uncle Sam opened his relief purse. Today, hundreds of homes lie desolate and abandoned. Meanwhile, their former tenants purchase, with their relief pittance, quantities of products such as those were at the movies. I will not go into more details, but in view of all the sensational and sentimental publicity being focused on tenant farmers as a result of John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath," Mr. Konkler's story interested me very much. Hence, I wrote three leading people in Mena to see if what Mr. Konkler wrote me were true. They replied that every word was true.

I do not need to add to Mr. Konkler's comments. He has summed up the situation concisely and emphasized a very fundamental principle.

ment projects of the type the government has tried in spots—setting people down with high-falutin homes, giving them all modern conveniences, launching them with a hopeless debt. Let them begin just as their forefathers did, if they can do no better. What our country needs right now is the man with a will. We need more men, more families, with the will to shun government help, with the will to take hold wherever they can, with the will to do their best with what they have to do with. Personal initiative was what made this country great, and only personal initiative will solve its present problems. Let me quote Mr. Konkler:

"Our leaders, as a rule, are just plain afraid to suggest, even faintly, that individuals who are in need of help should help themselves. They fear to recommend the old-fashioned virtues and the personal advantages of going back to constructive work. I am not an idealist. I know all the loafers can never be converted to the advantages of hard work. But I do feel sure that a national drive along such lines, using plain talk instead of taffy, would greatly increase the percentage of those trying to help themselves."

Better Than War
"Farm relief measures have been political footballs; each candidate trying to increase the 'benefits' to the voting farmers back home. Instead of these handouts, we should encourage individual families to move back to farms. The men of these families would go to war to save their country. Wouldn't it be much more pleasant to go back to the land and save themselves as well as their country—starting as farm hands or renters, then on up to ownership and security, just as people used to do? Think of the happy days—as they gained self-respect and independence, inch by inch. I know because I have been through it. Nothing else will ever bring them more happiness, satisfaction, or security."

I do not need to add to Mr. Konkler's comments. He has summed up the situation concisely and emphasized a very fundamental principle.

Tillson, Feb. 23.—Friends Church, the Rev. Anson Coutant, pastor—Sunday school at 10 a. m. Church service with sermon at 11 o'clock. Saturday of this week, February 24, the monthly meeting of the Society of Friends will be held in the Tillson Church. Service opens at 11 o'clock. All are welcome.

Reformed Church, the Rev. Ben Thaden, minister—Church service at 9:30 a. m. with sermon by the Rev. Mr. Thaden. Sunday school at 10:30 o'clock. D. L. Christians, superintendent. Classes for all ages.

The Rev. Anson Coutant attended the funeral Monday of the wife of his cousin, Morgan Coutant, at New Paltz, and assisted in the services.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin DeWitt of Walkkill called at the home of William Deyo last week on their way to Kingston to attend a dinner in honor of the fifth anniversary of their marriage.

The annual Valentine party of the Dorcas Club of the Reformed Church, which was postponed from Wednesday night because of the storm, was held Saturday evening. A very pleasant time was had by everyone attending.

Mrs. Wolken is improving steadily. She is able to sit up awhile every day now.

Those who have been ill with the epidemic of severe colds, are better, but several new cases have developed. Bert Myers, Marjorie Osmer and Doris Keator are among the number.

Mrs. Roosa Has 89th Birthday

Mrs. MARY A. ROOSA of Flatbush avenue celebrates her 89th birthday Friday. She was born in Kingston where she has lived all her life, in 1851. For 52 years she lived on Ten Broeck avenue.

The picture of her shown above, which was taken in January, shows her holding in her hand a bible given to her father, William Wynkoop, by the late Rev. John C. P. Hoos, pastor of the First Reformed Church, when he left Kingston on September 2, 1862, as a Civil War soldier.

Mrs. Roosa's son, William Roosa of 49 Cedar street, says that his mother comes of a long-lived family. Her grandmother was 115 years old at the time of her death, and her cousin, Mrs. Sally Sampson of 137 Abel street, being past 103 years of age.

In giving some account of his mother and her family he says that Mrs. Roosa's father used to cross the Rondout creek to Sleightsburg on a large scow operated by John P. Sleight, before the days of the old chain ferry, Riverdale. He says that his mother remembers the first meeting, held in the old Dutch Church 74 years ago, when the Y. M. C. A. was organized in the then village of Kingston, and also remembers the meetings that were held in the basement of the George B. Merritt drygoods store on Fair street.

Mrs. Roosa's father was well known in Marlborough long before the Civil War and the 89-year-old daughter has the coat that he wore when he was married, more than 90 years ago.

One of the oldest living members of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church, Mrs. Roosa is also one of the oldest members of the Daughters of Salome, a society organized 78 years ago. Her sister, the late Jane F. Roosa, was superintendent of the Sunday School at the Franklin Street Church for more than 40 years; she was for years, a stewardess on the William F. Romer, steamer that ran from Kingston to New York city.

Mrs. Roosa is the widow of Thomas C. Roosa, who came to Kingston from Accord in 1862 and who was a well known boatman on the steamer James W. Baldwin. He was a choir singer in the Franklin Street Church and a member of the Sunday School. The church at that time was on Union Street, now Broadway, Franklin Street then was known as the Bowery.

A Cornell bulletin for fruit growers in eastern New York tells how to protect orchard crops from diseases and insects. The number is E-314, and they may have single copies by writing to the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca.

Securities Exchange Commission Under Its Conception of Law Is Forcing Big Companies Into Bankruptcy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Feb. 23.—What Congress had in mind in passing the securities and exchange act was to protect and not to sabotage the savings of investors. There was no intention to entrust a commission with the power to force big companies into bankruptcy. Yet this is precisely what the S. E. C. under its conception of the present law is doing, and it may well be that if the S. E. C. does not modify its interpretation of the law, almost every one of the big holding companies involving directly and indirectly a $12,000,000,000 industry, will be forced into the bankruptcy courts.

The recent activity of the government ownership school of thought here leads to the belief that the forcing of the Associated Gas and Electric Company into bankruptcy by the S. E. C. may be but the beginning of a crusade to force down the values of utility properties to the point where they can be acquired by the government as were the private properties in the T. V. A. area in the south.

The power that the commission has to step in at any moment and forbid even the payment of interest by an operating company to a parent corporation is such that if the point of view exhibited in the Associated Gas case is a criterion, Congress may well expect a period of serious deflation in the American economy system in the next several months as one by one the big utility systems are thrown into the bankruptcy courts.

The situation is best revealed by examining the experience of the Associated Gas system. This is admittedly a tangled system and one in which there are two layers of holding companies—the very evil that the statute sought to cure. But the company through new management, entirely divorced from the old, submitted resignations of all officers and directors and offered a comprehensive plan for the S. E. C. to approve. The S. E. C. would not budge an inch. It would not help protect the investors from loss, though there is much to be explained in the fact that the S. E. C. did have the Associated Gas integration plan for several months and did approve an "upstream" payment in December, only to reverse itself in January.

It is true that the company president, Roger Whiteford, in a public statement and the commission in its formal opinion, said that they preferred the immediate issuance of an unfavorable order by the S. E. C. to the opportunity for appeal. But anybody who understands these things knows that a company itself is going to be forced into bankruptcy reorganization, it likes to file its own petition first in court.

What really happened is that Mr. Whiteford, who took the presidency in 1939 and saw the earnings of the Associated Gas system rise, thought that the affairs of the company could be straightened out with the cooperation of the S. E. C. so that bankruptcy could be avoided. He struggled in vain to get the commission to help. It refused to indicate what it would do, and even when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was ready with a loan to refund the maturing bonds of the Associated Gas due in March, 1940, the S. E. C. refused to give any signal that it would not put the Associated Gas system into the bankruptcy courts.

It should be borne in mind that the members of securities and exchange commission are conscientious men with a high sense of duty, and they could not bring themselves to approve or work out any plan with the Associated Gas system, even though it is a solvent company and has assets more than sufficient to pay its debt and meet its equity obligations.

The fact that the S. E. C. hesitated and insisted on forcing the matter into the courts could be taken to mean that no integration system for any holding company will be approved, with possibly one or two exceptions, unless the holding companies go into the bankruptcy courts.

This could mean traffic losses for investors. Already the bonds of the Associated Gas which were selling at 28 early this year have dropped to 15, and the entire utility industry is up in the air as to how the "death sentence" is to be applied. Congress probably is really at fault for the present situation, but it is argued, on the other hand, that the S. E. C. could prevent losses to investors by a more realistic attitude relating to the 225,000 persons who have invested in the Associated Gas properties.

It is true that the Associated Gas had many faults and that a simplified reorganization plan approved by the S. E. C. could have cured them and yet protected the investors. The S. E. C. commissioners will deny that this could have been accomplished, but persons intimately familiar with the affairs of the company and the negotiations with the S. E. C. extending over several months feel that the S. E. C. did not sufficiently take into account probable losses to investors, and took instead a course that may mean a breakdown in values of these investments.

The properties in question are located in a territory having a population of 7,000,000 and involve the supplying of gas and electricity to 1,700,000 customers. The company "showed substantial increases" in earnings for the months of September, October and November 1939 over the corresponding months of the previous year and might have been saved. But bureaucracy thought otherwise.

Thus, it may be said, are the cures sometimes worse than the evils sought to be cured—at least many tens of thousands of persons whose savings have been affected by the government's action will hardly be blamed now for thinking so. Congress ought really to investigate the whole business before more losses occur in other utility systems through a "death sentence" law that is squeezed through the Senate by one vote under pressure of the administration lobbyists.

Modern Seed Catalog Is Gardener's Reference Book

The arrival of the seed catalog is the first sign of spring for the gardener. Although the garden may be covered with snow, and the soil as immovable as rock, the sun has ceased declining, and every day favors us with a few more minutes of daylight—what better sign of spring!

The early interest is not all wishful thinking on the part of the gardener and the seedsmen, for gardening is a serious hobby or duty, as the case may be, and demands continued thought on the part of anyone who will practice it with competence.

These early weeks when inclement weather keeps us indoors should be devoted to fireside planning for the spring and summer show of color. What mistakes did we make last year? Was that border of bright marigolds too tall? Wouldn't sweet alyssum be better as a trim for the front yard planting of flowers? These are the questions we should ask ourselves in January.

The answers are usually to be found in the seed catalog. Unlike other industries, the garden seed catalog is an educational volume, which contains an almost unlimited fund of information about the heights, colors, growing habits and cultural needs of flowers and vegetables. Some of them are even so complete (they list thousands of varieties) that they are used in agricultural schools as text books.

It is important, for you to know for instance, that a certain variety of zinnia grows 18 inches tall, while another might grow only 6 inches, for in a border planting it would be manifestly bad taste if you confused the two and placed the taller variety in the front row and thus hide the shorter one.

DeGraff Sentence Is Suspended

On the recommendation of the district attorney's office, sentence was suspended in the case of Samuel DeGraff, 27, of 31 Third avenue, when DeGraff was arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court.

Judge Cahill agreed to dismiss the case provided that DeGraff kept his agreement to make restitution to Ernest D'Ambrosio of Marlborough, who had sworn out the warrant.

DeGraff was charged with selling D'Ambrosio a truck on which there was a chattel mortgage. Leonard Torrence, 29, a negro of Ellenville, was arrested last night on charges of operating a car on Broadway without having a driver's license or a certificate of registration. Bail of $10 was forfeited when Torrence failed to appear in court today.

'I WANT TO DIE'

"Why don't they electrocute me?" pleaded Mrs. Betty Hardaker (above) after Police Chief Harry Bispham quoted her as confessing she beat her 5-year-old daughter, Geraldine, to death in the rest room of a park at Montebello, suburb of Los Angeles. She is shown here as she was questioned by Los Angeles police.

CAPE-AND-FROCK KIDDIE OUTFIT

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9054

Here's a complete "go-to-meeting" ensemble for a smart little girl. Marian Martin's Pattern 9054. The adorable pantie-dress would be butterfly-gay in a crisp organdie or in a new dotted swiss sprinkled with flowers. You'll like the sleeves either puffed or in wing-like flares. The princess lines are flattering to tiny busy-bodies—and so simple to stitch. And the shirred front bodice, which may contrast, is soft and utterly charming. Try finishing off the dress prettily with a back-tying sash and ruffled edging. Now add the perky-shouldered unlined cape, making it of, say, gay contrasting flannel.

Pattern 9054 may be ordered only in children's sizes, 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress, requires 2½ yards 35 inch fabric and 1½ yards ruffling; cape ¾ yard 54 inch fabric.

shut. Most of the candidates are making desperate efforts to smoke him out of the third term hole. It is entirely possible that several of them might unite their forces in a bitter fight to stop a third term if the silence lasts too long.

No Obvious Union

Thus far, there has been no obvious union of the anti-third term forces, whatever may have been the undercover maneuvers. The surface scrambling for the nomination has been fairly good-natured. None of the candidates has cared to go far enough in his anti-third term utterances to make it hard for Mr. Roosevelt to take him as a successor.

They are all trying to nurse along a surface party amity, each of them pretty well satisfied that a red hot party-splitting fight in the convention could mean the loss of the election.

Adams' Letter

John Adams throws some light on the pleasure with which George Washington yielded up the presidency. In a letter to his wife on March 5, 1797, the day after his own inauguration as second president, Adams wrote a description of that event:

"A solemn scene it was, indeed, and it was made more affecting to me by the presence of the general (Washington), whose countenance was as serene and unclouded as the day. He seemed to me to enjoy a triumph over me. I thought I heard him say, 'ay, I am fairly out and you are fairly in. See which of us will be happiest.' When the ceremony was over, he came and made me a visit, and cordially congratulated me, and wished my administration might be happy, successful and honorable."

This was quite a contrast with the Adams who four years later stormed at Thomas Jefferson "you have turned me out," and a bitter old man, set out in a coach over the muddy road to Baltimore before daylight on March 4 so as not to see Jefferson take the oath of office.

Alice Faye Plans To End Marriage

Hollywood, Feb. 23 (AP).—The tuneful romance of blues-singer Alice Faye and her handsome radio-crooning husband, Tony Martin, has come to a discordant ending. Alice plans to get a divorce.

The blonde actress and the dark-haired radio star, who also has achieved prominence in the movies, eloped to Yuma, Ariz., September 3, 1937. Neither had been married before. But their music careers, linked at first, finally pulled them apart.

Martin's radio and orchestra work kept him constantly "on the road" or in the east.

Alice, banned by her studio from radio appearances which interfered with her acting career, remained close to Hollywood and the films, which during 1939 elevated her to seventh place in stars box-office ranking.

After laughing off many reports within recent months that they were estranged, Miss Faye announced last night that she had instructed her attorney, Jules Goldstone, to file suit for divorce today or tomorrow, charging incompatibility. She said Martin would not contest the suit.

"It was inevitable," said Miss Faye, "that we should part. Tony's a grand person, but we simply didn't have a marriage."

Martin, now working at Miami, Fla., said by telephone before departing by plane for New York: "We did our best to make a go of it. Our separate careers kept us apart—there doesn't appear to be anything else but a divorce."

"It's too bad, but I wish Alice the very best of luck."

ASHOKAN

Ashokan, Feb. 23.—Grant De Silva of Boiceville was a caller here Tuesday.

Miss Marie Lyons and fiance, Donald Oakley, of Stone Ridge, and sister, Gertrude, visited their aunt, Mrs. Burton Christiana, one evening last week. Mr. and Mrs. Christiana left on February 18 for a motor trip to Florida for several weeks.

William Brooks returned home Saturday from the Kingston Hospital, where he had a successful major operation.

Mrs. John Hyser and her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Eckert, of Hunter, helped Mrs. Lincoln Smith and Mrs. Bodie make a quilt last week Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Iapace are home from several weeks' visit among friends and relatives in Long Island City.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bush and daughter, Lena, and son, Arthur, had dinner with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carter Sunday.

Justin and Virginia Bell of Hurley visited his mother, Mrs. Nancy Bell, and sisters, Chloe and Nellie, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hansen went to West Hurley to call on her father, Ferdie Herrick, who is under the care of Dr. Cohn.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynold Wilcox Bishop and son, Freddie Saxon, visited Kingston Wednesday.

Mrs. C. G. Fuller of Mount Laurel Lodge, Shokan, is visiting her daughter in New York for two weeks.

Jervis Bell of Kingston came up and helped his mother and sisters shovel snow last Saturday.

The Misses Marie Lyons and Muriel DuBois of this place and Mrs. Burton Christiana of Shokan were guests of Mrs. John Buzzanco of 177 Green street, Kingston, on Wednesday afternoon where a Valentine bridge party was held. Honors were won by Mrs. Ray Cragen and Mrs. Mary Scott. After an enjoyable afternoon of cards a luncheon was served.

Mrs. Ezra Green is ill at her home.

Mrs. Charles Green and son, Marvin, called on her sister, Mrs. E. R. Kinney, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eckert of West Shokan called on Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Green recently.

Mrs. Cox and son, en route from Kingston to their home on Mountain road, were stalled in the storm Wednesday evening and had to sit in the car all night.

Isiah Shultis is ill at his home in Shokan.

Jesse Weeks was taken to the hospital in Kingston Tuesday.

St. James Church Picnic.

The Sunday school of St. James Church, Fair and Pearl streets, will hold a mid-winter picnic this Friday evening, beginning at 5 p. m. The committee for the picnic, as last year, is composed entirely of children and young people from the church school with Mrs. Lenora Drais, deaconess, as adviser. They have planned a program of songs, stunts and races and games which they will have charge of. There will be ice cream, pop and chocolate milk, and candy for sale. The families are asked to bring a picnic basket and eat in a park in summer time. It is requested that as nearly as possible all who attend wear picnic clothes, and will look as summery as possible. All boys and girls and their parents are invited to attend.

PRESIDENT SEES PANAMA CANAL DEFENSES

President Roosevelt leaves the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa at Cristobal, Canal Zone, for a trip across the Zone during which he inspected its defenses. The President made a surprise visit to the canal during his voyage into the Gulf of Mexico. Later he went fishing on the Pacific side. At the canal he saw the result of Uncle Sam's efforts to protect the vital waterway against any attack.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Highland, Feb. 22.—Mrs. John J. Gaffney is chairman for Highland for the hobby show to be held in Kingston, March 29 and 30. This is under the auspices of the Ulster County Home Bureau. The exhibits will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 9 at night and Boy Scouts, 4-H club members and Hi-Y Club boys will be in charge. Exhibits will be in two classes, active and passive. A special program for the former and the latter will be displayed by groups and individuals. Entry blanks can be procured from Mrs. Gaffney and exhibits must be ready by March 9.

Book Review
The book, "Through Stragely to Triumph," by Basil Matthews was reviewed Monday evening at the meeting of the Evening Reading Circle at the home of Mrs. Matthew Busch, by Miss Marie Van Wormer. The book covers the Madras conference held last year in India.

Mrs. A. W. Lent conducted the business meeting and the Circle voted $10 to the Mission Circle. This is to apply on the salary of Mrs. John M. Imbrie, North River Presbyterian worker in Africa. The meeting on March 4 will be with Mrs. Charles Whittaker. Guests for the evening were Mrs. Mary Carroll, Mrs. Gideon Tompkins, the Misses Kathleen Kenny and Jennie Dimsey. Members out were Mrs. Lent, Mrs. Bertram Cottine, Mrs. Bertram Dimsey, Mrs. Gladys Mears, Mrs. C. W. Rathgeb, Miss Van Wormer, and Mrs. D. S. Haynes. For refreshments the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Busch and Gordon Busch were joined by the Rev. D. S. Haynes and A. W. Lent.

Change Power Line

Good Pay

Hannibal, Mo.—The Chamber of Commerce wishes all bills were as easy to collect as this one.

Matt Nisson, young Santa Ana, Calif., philatelist, sent a nickel for a first day "cover" bearing the new 10-cent Mark Twain Memorial stamp. He got it and a bill for the balance.

Apologetically, the boy replied with another nickel and wrote: "If any of you commerce fellows are out this way, stop in and have an orange or so with my dad's compliments."

Soft Answer

Boston—A holdup man ordered Isaac Smith to open the safe in his Roxbury garage.

"I'm a stranger here, buddy," Smith said blandly, "I'm just waiting for a friend."

Exit holdup man swiftly—a puzzled look on his face.

Dog's Life

Salern, Ore.—The state department of agriculture reports the price of liver is rising so high that packers may substitute prunes in dog food preparations.

Paging Mother Goose

Des Moines, Iowa—Almost everywhere that Mary goes Shep goes, too—including school.

The pet, brown and white dog of 16-year-old Mary McCullough is also the mascot of Lincoln High School. He sits upright at his desk while listening attentively to the lessons. As a janitorial sideline he picks up scraps of paper on the floor and deposits them in the wastebasket.

Jitterbug

Portland, Ore.—The traffic officer will wait until the excitement wears off before again trying to serve an overtime parking warrant on Arthur A. Stone.

"I couldn't keep Stone still long enough to tell him what I wanted," the officer complained.

He had just learned he was the father of twins.

Dahl Might Be Arrested For Forgery in Los Angeles

Boy Leader of Tibet

This plump Chinese peasant boy, Lingerli Lamutanchu—Lingerli the divine child—was chosen the 14th Dalai Lama, spiritual and temporal leader of Tibet, without the traditional drawing ceremony. He is said to have been born on the same day the 13th Dalai Lama died, December 17, 1933.

Siam's Minister Dies

London, Feb. 23 (AP)—Vice Admiral Phya Rajawongsan, 54, Thailand's (Siam) minister to London, died today of heart disease. He was his country's permanent representative in the League of Nations.

Herman Carr, Marquette University senior quarter-mile star, all but earned his nickname, "Killer." He was disqualified for bumping into or otherwise spilling other contenders.

Madrid, Feb. 23 (AP)—Plump and ruddy, flier-of-fortune Harold Dahl said today he expected to join his wife in theatrical activities in the United States within two weeks.

Happily puffing an American cigarette, Dahl, released yesterday after nearly three years as a Spanish war prisoner, said he had been "exceptionally well treated"—even though he came within an ace of going before a Franco firing squad.

His beautiful blonde singer-dancer wife, Edith Rogers Dahl, who helped save him by sending her picture to General Franco, is doing a Spanish dance act in a Philadelphia night club.

Dahl and six of eight freed Americans, outfitted with new shoes and clothing, were put on the steamer Exiria at Seville last night, the U. S. embassy was advised, and were expected to sail tonight.

(In Los Angeles, Calif., Police Chief Arthur Hohmann said that if Dahl ever came there, he would be liable to forgery charges regarding $1,500 in worthless checks he is accused of passing.)

Dahl said he had come to Spain "just for the adventure."

Recalling the air battle which resulted in his capture by Generalissimo Franco's forces in July, 1937, he said he was forced to parachute to earth when a wing dropped off his plane.

"I enjoyed my 38 months in Spain," Dahl said. "I like the country and I'd like to be able to come back some time."

The other prisoners appeared in good health and showed no effects of long confinement.

The American embassy still is receiving many pathetic letters from mothers and other relatives of American youths reported missing.

Hope still lingers that they may be alive, but the embassy's most careful check indicates that the eight Americans released yesterday were the last held here. There still are a number of prisoners of dual nationality, however, and their cases are getting separate consideration.

Marriage After Death

Paris, Feb. 23 (AP)—Soldiers and sailors can be married in France after they're dead, if a proposed measure now being considered by a chamber of deputies committee passes. The bill is designed to legitimize children and enable widows to draw pensions.

VOTERS SMASH LONG MACHINE

Louisiana's next governor and his first lady, Mr. and Mrs. Sam H. Jones, exchanged this affectionate greeting at New Orleans after his victory over Governor Earl K. Long in the bitter Democratic gubernatorial state primary.

Wood Alcohol Killed Young

Augustus Young, 57, who died at the city lock-up in the Ulster county jail on the morning of January 21, while being held on a public intoxication charge, died as a result of drinking wood alcohol, according to a chemical analysis. Young was arrested on January 20 by Officer Robert Healey and placed in jail.

Early on the morning of January 21, Night Jailor Lyman Ellsworth found Young ill and summoned the jail physician. Medical aid was of no avail and for a time it was not known definitely what the cause of death was. A chemical analysis of the contents of the stomach and vital organs showed that death was caused by alcoholic poisoning. On laboratory examination it was found that the blood, spinal column and brain all contained sufficient wood alcohol to result in death. The verdict was announced by District Attorney N. LeVan Haver, who ordered a laboratory analysis to determine the cause of death. Young gave his address on admission to the jail as 157 Hasbrouck avenue.

Lactic Acid Into Rubber

Many forward strides in the utilization of waste products include some of promise to the lacquer and varnish industry. One in particular deals with converting the lactic acid in dairy products into a substance known as polymethylacrylate, a rubberlike material, which—in addition to being very tough and elastic—is not subject to discoloration by sunlight or ultra-violet rays. This method will probably prove of significance in the formulation of lacquers, varnishes and impregnating compounds. If it proves commercially practicable, a source of low-cost lacquer and varnish ingredients will have been found.

The Hobart lacrosse team saw its 13 game winning streak broken by Syracuse last year, but managed to tie Cornell University and go on to victories over Lafayette, Union, Penn State and Colgate.

City Snow Loader Soon to End Work

The snow loader and a crew of 50 men and trucks will work tonight, Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding of the public works board said this morning and he expects the night's work would result in the clearing of the three business sections of the drifts of snow, and that it would not be necessary to operate the snow loader longer unless there was another heavy storm.

Superintendent Steuding during the day has a force of men and trucks out removing the drifts from in front of the churches and schools, and also had a gang of men busy clearing crosswalks and opening catch basins so that the melted snow during the day could run off into the sewers.

Thursday's lowest temperature as recorded by the official city thermometer was seven degrees above and a high that afternoon of 23 degrees was recorded. This morning the lowest temperature recorded by the official city thermometer was nine degrees above zero.

While the official city thermometer was recording close to zero marks, thermometers in other sections of the city were recording zero.

The records in the city engineer's office disclosed today that so far this month the total snowfall in Kingston had totaled a precipitation of 22 1/2 inches. Of that amount of snow a foot fell during the blizzard of St. Valentine's Day, which was followed by a six-inch fall of snow on February 20.

Finest $35 for Shooting Doe and Having No License

Peter Engelman, 40, of Hurley, a caretaker on the Teufel property, formerly the old Newkirk homestead on the mountain road, was arrested Thursday by Troopers Reilly and Winkky on a charge of shooting a doe deer and was held at the county jail.

Arraigned this morning before Justice Roger H. Loughran, Engelman was fined $25 for shooting the deer, which he paid. He also was given a second fine of $10 on a charge of hunting without a license.

Charles Moser, 163-pound mighty mite who handled the center job on Missouri's great football team last fall, is equally mighty in the classroom. His first semester average was "A."

BLOOD RUNS COLD

By Ann Demarest

Chapter 34 Out Of Danger

AS I turned to leave I heard the Sergeant calling me from the stairway. Explanations were getting to be second nature, so it took me only a few minutes to tell him the little I knew. I said I wasn't at all certain when I first heard the sound of the engine. I was afraid to ask who had been found in the garage.

"Well, that's that," he said. "It's a good thing you heard it. He'll pull through."

So the man was alive. "Who is it?" I finally said.

"Whitefield."

"Why—how—?"

"That's what I'd like to know." The Sergeant shook his head angrily. "His car wasn't in the garage at six o'clock. There's supposed to be someone watching this house every minute, yet he drives in, leaves his motor running to commit suicide and no one sees him."

He stamped down the stairs, leaving me in a ferment. Whitefield had tried to commit suicide. And for what reason? And where was Dirck? And when I thought of him, I knew why Bernuda had lost caste. New York with its murders, blizzards and mysteries was better with Dirck than fields of fragrant Easter lilies and sunshine would be with Toby.

And then I thought, "That lawyer has a high regard for you, Miss Howarth. He goes dashing off, leaving you to the mercies of people who break into rooms and roam around fire escapes."

That Wednesday night, the third evening I'd spent in the house, was the longest I've ever put in. I sat up in the wing chair by the fireplace with the lights on, alternately furious at Dirck and then melting. I got snatches of sleep, I suppose, but the little I had was interrupted by dreams, and I would start up, my eyes going first to the fire escape and then to the door.

In the morning about eight o'clock Dirck appeared without a word of explanation, looking as though he'd been up all night. After breakfast with him at the knife and fork he brought me back to the house and left again. He had said nothing except to ask me how I'd sleep.

The shop was still closed, of course, and I wandered around the house following the reporters who had arrived in droves. The attempted suicide seemed to make more impression than the murders. Mary Ann and Adrienne were both out and Mrs. Evans was among the missing for a change.

Sarah finally showed up and gave my apartment more of a lick and a promise than the thorough cleaning that it needed. She went about her work in sullen silence and departed with a backward glance of disapproval.

Mr. Kimball called me about half-past ten. He asked me if I minded sitting in the shop for a little while in case anyone called. The reporters had nearly driven him mad and he wanted to take a short walk. I had to stay with the reporters while they were in Whitefield's apartment.

The reporters subsided a little after he left and the house was fairly quiet and desolate, though the day was clear and the sun shone brightly on the snowy street. I had the feeling you have after a funeral when the shades are still drawn and voices are muted.

Ada's Mother

ABOUT eleven o'clock a woman came to the shop and asked for Miss Wells. I called up the stairway, but neither of the girls had come in yet. And the woman, I took her to be about Mr. Kimball's age, asked if she might wait. She took a chair by the window and sat there until Mr. Kimball came back, and then I took her up to my apartment.

She took a chair by the window, sitting on the edge of it and looking at me timidly from time to time without speaking. I tried to talk a little, but she didn't seem to be listening, and suddenly she interrupted me in the middle of a brief survey of New York weather.

"Do you know Miss Wells?" she asked.

"Yes," I said. "Not very well, though. I've lived here for only three days."

She was silent again and I looked at her curiously. She was rather attractive in a faded sort of way. Her clothes were unpretentious, but she held herself with a quiet pride.

"I wonder," she said after a moment. "I wonder if you would mind describing her—Miss Wells—to me?"

She was surprised. It seemed odd that she had come to me for the girl without knowing her. But when I finished a very lame description the woman nodded her head vigorously and a smile lighted her face.

"You don't know what this means to me," she said, drawing her chair closer to mine. "I've worried for months not knowing where she was or what she was doing. Then I saw her name in the papers. Adrienne Wells. It said her name was really Ada. But I said to myself, maybe she's changed her name. I hoped and prayed this Adrienne would be her."

I was confused and she must have noticed it, for she said, "You see, I'm Ada Wells' mother."

I murmured something inaudibly. There was nothing that I could think of to say. It seemed almost incredible that this pleasant, home-like person could be the mother of a girl like Adrienne Wells.

"Is she all right?" she asked eagerly. "Well, I mean?"

"Why, yes, of course," I managed that much.

She hesitated. "I read all about it in the papers and I was so worried. I couldn't leave him—her father—to come here yesterday. He isn't very well. She isn't... I mean," she faltered, "the police don't suspect her, do they? It didn't sound right in the papers."

"No, of course not," I told her quickly. "They question everyone in the house. That's just a formality."

The woman was intensely relieved. I could tell, although she said hastily, "Of course, I knew she'd never do anything wrong, but not hearing from her and not knowing where she was living worried me." She took a handkerchief out of her worn leather bag and wiped her eyes.

"You must have been upset," I said.

Shaken

THE woman leaned forward confidentially. "She's a good girl," she said, "but she was always headstrong, and when her father forbade her to go on the stage, she quarreled with him. Then she ran away from home. I've always thought if we'd been a little more sympathetic she'd have listened to reason. And she didn't write me as soon as she got to New York. But you see she didn't say where she was living. I guess she was afraid of what her father might do. I wanted to come and find her. But he's a hard man. He wouldn't let me lift a finger. Is she working?"

I shook my head. "She was, I know," I said cautiously. "I'm not sure whether she is now."

"Maybe she'll come home with me," her mother murmured. "Her father's illness has made him a little softer. He'd be glad to have her back now."

I heard voices in the lower hall and then through the open door, way I could see Adrienne Wells coming up the stairs. Her mother's eyes lighted at the sound of her voice as Adrienne called back to Mr. Kimball, and when she hurried out into the hall I closed my door. I didn't feel in the mood for a reunion. But I'd gotten a glimpse of the girl's face. She was shaken at seeing her mother, but there was something deeper than that in her eyes. She was afraid of something, even as she hadn't been last night.

It was after twelve when Mr. Kimball came up to tell me that Sergeant Long had called. Mr. Whitefield was still in the hospital, but he had improved considerably and was out of danger. There was a broken place in the roof of the garage where air could get in and that had saved his life. But Mr. Kimball said, surprisingly that the artist was under arrest. What theory the Sergeant had built around Whitefield's attempted suicide, we didn't know.

When Mary Ann came in, Mr. Kimball invited both of us down to the shop for lunch and I accepted gladly and so did Mary Ann. The knife and fork was a noble institution, but I was beginning to wish the menu was a little more varied. Wheat cakes and ham and eggs are swell occasionally, but for a daily diet they are a little heavy even for a thin person.

Ishi had prepared a delicious luncheon, but he served it with that smile on his face that gave me the willies. I wondered if the Sergeant had gotten Mary Ann to talk and whether Mr. Kimball knew the girl had been with Richard the night Joan died. Mary Ann was quiet and Mr. Kimball talked little, so I was glad to leave them and get back to my apartment. I wanted to be alone to worry about Dirck. He hadn't been in the house all morning.

It was a little after two when the Sergeant rushed upstairs. "Is Miss Wells in?" he shouted.

Before I could answer Adrienne came out of the apartment and closed the door behind her. Her face was as white as a sheet.

"I want to talk to you, young lady."

Adrienne begged him to be quiet. "My mother is in there," she said, motioning to her room.

"Come down to the shop, then," the Sergeant said brusquely.

Adrienne followed him down the stairs, and Mary Ann passed them on her way up.

"What does he want with her? What did she do?" she gasped to me.

I shook my head. If Whitefield was connected with Joan's and Richard's deaths, Adrienne would be mixed up in it, too. She'd been with the artist that evening.

A Long Way Together

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Platzer shown above in their Stone Ridge home, have had an interesting life in their 50 years of married life together. They lived mostly in New York until 19 years ago, when they came to their present home, and among their earlier recollections are automobile rides in a 1902 model automobile, which according to Mr. Platzer, "Went up the hills like a jack rabbit—all leaps and bounds."

Artist Recalls Career Days On Date of Golden Wedding

Fifty years of married life and nothing to bring serious worry or discontent—that has been the "status quo," of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Platzer, of Stone Ridge, who yesterday observed their golden wedding anniversary.

"I can't complain about anything," said Mr. Platzer yesterday. "I've had about everything I wanted to have because I made up my mind to get it." Mrs. Platzer quietly and admiringly assented to this philosophy of her husband.

Having everything, to Mr. Platzer meant mainly success in his work as a scenic artist and he achieved the utmost in his profession before his retirement to Stone Ridge from New York city 19 years ago.

Numbered among the achievements of Mr. Platzer is a series of five large canvases which now hang on the walls of the waiting room in Pennsylvania Station, New York, and at his home in Stone Ridge are the miniature preliminary works for many large stage settings and backdrops.

The artist was paid $25,000 for the five paintings now in the Pennsylvania Station. This was in 1908, but his memory goes back to the first two or three days when he was in this country in 1889.

Came to America

He presented a vivid picture of himself as an alien, walking along the streets of New York with everything uncertain about his future in this new land. He paused in his aimless walking, beried in Jersey City, N. J., February 22, 1889 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. The couple now has a church paper with an account of the wedding printed in German. It records that she was Anna Maria Altenburger and they were married by the Rev. Dr. A. Stuckert.

Knew Jefferson

In the Platzer home now also is a landscape of the Catskill mountains. This was made just before the turn of the century, Mr. Platzer explains, when Joe Jefferson was winning fame for his portrayal of Rip Van Winkle. The artist was commissioned to do a set for the Jefferson play and having not seen the Catskills he came up this way for first hand impressions.

This incident represented but one brief chapter in the interesting life of the Platzers—a life associated with the most interesting of all careers—the theatre.

Make Opera Sets

"I was with the Metropolitan Opera House after the fire, near the turn of the century, for a number of years. I made many sets for them and met so many interesting people that it is difficult to remember them all," the artist relates.

The artist painted drops and sets also for "The Bostonians," a light opera company which reached its height of fame in about 1904. He did much work also for Charles Frohman and other noted producers and prominent theatrical figures such as Richard Mansfield and Ned Wayburn.

Following their marriage, the Platzers lived in Jersey City for about six months. They then moved to the Bronx where they remained for 28 years and until Mr. Platzer decided to retire.

Had 1902 Car

Pictures in the home of this Stone Ridge couple also include a number of photographs showing them as typical tourists of the earlier days of the automobile. They had their first car in 1902, and have owned enough different automobiles to be familiar with the development of the horseless carriage in all its different stages.

"We toured the hills of New England for a long time in search of a home where we might settle down some day in retirement," Mr. Platzer explained, "but until we found this spot here in Stone Ridge, none was exactly to our liking."

Asked what he thought of modern life and the chances of youth as compared to the older days, the artist replied: "Everything has changed greatly. Conditions now are more against the younger people. In the older days almost any man could go into business if he wanted to, but now you have to have a millionaire uncle if you take a chance at any kind of business."

Mr. Platzer owned his own studio in New York. It was one of the largest in the city because all of his work was produced on a gigantic scale. He employed from 15 to 20 men and often all hands worked many hours overtime to get a set ready for the opening of a play.

Such works also as that for the Pennsylvania Station were also immense. Each canvas was 70 feet wide and 26 feet high, but these were considered small as compared to many works turned out for the theatre.

The artist considers his chief blessing the fact that he has never been ill. "I consider myself a fortunate man," he said, "because I have never known a day of real illness and because I have been able to get ahead in the work I like."

Mrs. Platzer too, is an active and alert mate. She retains almost a girl-like pride in her husband and likes to show his work to visitors. She is watchful of his health and her own and explains: "I want us to stay healthy for 25 years more."

The bones, teeth, hooves and horns of cattle contain a large amount of phosphorus, which is an important element in the feeding of dairy cattle.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R. Has Annual Observance of Washington's Birthday

The annual Washington's Birthday celebration of Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution held at the chapter house on Thursday afternoon was attended by 125 members and guests.

The program was given in the large auditorium on the second floor and consisted of a playlet written by Mrs. Raymond R. Gross which centered about a true incident connected with the burning of Kingston in 1777. This incident was the celebration of the 15th birthday of Rachel Dumont. When she was about to cut the large, ornate birthday cake, news came of the approach of the British, causing the family and guests to flee in confusion.

The cast of characters were as follows: Rachel Dumont, Mrs. Clarence Wolfenstein; Mrs. Dumont, Mrs. Raymond R. Gross; Christiana, a servant, Mrs. Bertrand B. Bishop; Diana, another servant, Mrs. Howard R. St. John; guests, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, Miss Louise W. van Hovenberg, Mrs. Hiram F. Whitney and Mrs. Maynard Mizel, children, Walter May, Jr., and Joan Comstock. The picturesque colonial costumes and the musical numbers added greatly to the play.

The musical numbers were "A Birthday" by Fred Cowan, and "A Heart That Is True," by Alfred Robyn, sung by Mrs. Wolfenstein; "The Old Refrain," by Kreisler and "Moonlight," by Schumann, sung by Mrs. R. R. Gross; "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen," a negro spiritual, sung by Mrs. Bishop, and "A Thousand Years," by Henry E. Work, sung by the entire group. Two dance numbers were also given by Walter May, Jr., and Joan Comstock.

Munro-Shearer

Miss Madelyn Louise Shearer of Huntington, L. I., and William Carroll Munro of New York city were united in marriage in the Huntington Presbyterian Church on February 9. The bride is a daughter of the late George B. Shearer, Jr., and Mrs. Lillian Shearer Christian of Port Jervis. The bride has been teaching at Huntington. The groom is a former editor of Current History magazine and director of Finch Telecommunications, Inc., of New York.

Assembly Dance Saturday

The Lenten lull will be enlivened by the third Assembly dance Saturday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel. For this affair the committee has planned that dinner will be served at 8:30 o'clock. By popular demand Howard Lanin's orchestra of New York city will play for the dancing. This orchestra has appeared for other assembly dances. A large crowd is expected.

Annual Fashion Show

The annual fashion show of the Married Women's Club will be held Thursday, February 23, at 2:30 o'clock. This year the show will be open to the public. A small admission fee will be charged. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Harold V. Clayton and Mrs. Addison Schultz.

Those exhibiting at the show will be Goldman's Style Shop for hats and gowns; the Wonderly Company for accessories; and the Governor Clinton Beauty Shop for hair styles. Settings will be furnished by the Hardenbergh Co., and the background by J. R. Shultz.

There will be 14 models, two for hair styles and 12 for costumes. The fashion show will be more elaborate than in past years and a large attendance is expected. A food sale will be held in connection with the show.

MOTHER OF ENGAGED MAN SHOULD CALL ON HIS FIANCEE'S FAMILY

There is no further social obligation But She and Husband Usually Give Party for Girl

There is really only one MUST for the man's family as soon as his engagement has been announced. Which leaves me very little to answer the somewhat upset mother who writes: "My son has recently become engaged. Knowing that there are certainly many things expected of his family, I realize that I am completely uninformed because I can't think of any. However, since this is the first engagement in our family, I suppose I can be forgiven. But nevertheless I should be enlightened."

This duty of the man's mother is to go at once and call upon the mother of the girl. And then if she chooses (this is not an obligation but it is usual) she and her husband give a party of some sort for their son's fiancée. Or at least they invite the members of her family to dinner or to supper or to tea to meet her. If the girl is a stranger, a party for her would be more of an obligation than if she is a young neighbor who is known to all the relatives and friends—in which case the invitation "to meet" her would mean merely that the party is given in her honor.

To Sing or To Take Part

Dear Mrs. Post: My fiancée's young aunt is a well-known radio star. I have asked her to take part in our wedding and she has consented. Now somebody tells me that it would have been much more flattering had I asked her to sing. I feel very let down about this because I had felt it rather cheeky to ask her to sing, and had really hoped she would be pleased to know that it was for herself and not for her services as a singer that we want her.

Answer: I think you are entirely right in your reasoning, and I agree that asking her to sing would have been asking too great a favor of her—unless she had told her nephew that she would like to sing for you. As it is, I am sure she is pleased to know that you wanted her to be bridesmaid because you like her for herself.

The Question of a Long Engagement

Dear Mrs. Post: Our daughter has surprised us by wearing an engagement ring. We had hoped they would wait to decide this serious question, because they won't be able to marry for several years anyway. But the ring is here and my daughter walks around in a trance these days, radiantly happy. Since she's going to wear the ring, do you think it would be better that we announce the engagement in the papers and perhaps even give her a party?

'Y' Bulldogs Smothered by House of David Quintet, 65-52

Visitors Snatch Early Lead to Run Up 13-Point Win

Hardened Experts Go on Shooting Spree—Charley Bock Takes Individual Honors With 16

Settling down to an at home attitude in the first quarter, the house of David rained shots from all corners of the Y. M. C. A. gym last night to outpoint Weldon McCuskey's Bulldogs, before one of the largest turnouts of fans for the season, 65-52.

From the beginning right on through the skirmish to the final whistle, there was no doubt about the victory for the Davids, who put a stellar passing exhibition in addition to their shooting carnival which no player tallied less than 10 points.

Acker, Sheehan and Citrin contributed 14 markers apiece, Bellis and Jimmy Woods, captain of the band, 10 for the lowest total in the visiting club. Charley Bock with 16 was high for the Bulldogs and captured the individual shooting honors of the night. Tommy Weems made one, and put on a good show defensively. Eddie Bock and Andy Yokes were next in line for the Bulldogs.

While the Bulldogs were having bad luck with their long range pushups, rolling out of the sket in the first quarter, the armed cagers chalked up a 20-8 lead. At the half, they were in a 31-22 and going down the me stretch, started with a 46-lead on the way to their 13-point victory.

The preliminary ended in favor of the First Dutch over Port Ewen, 34-14.

acing Public Is against Meade Now

iami, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—One of the most puzzled young men in not-so-sunny south this winter is Don Meade, the horse rider, who has been the victim of a disrepute that the public is flocking to year ago at this time. Don Meade was public hero No. 1 and Hialeah Park. Every time he looked up, it seems in the past, Meade was driving an winner home and the grand patrons were baring their heads to the sky.

on, the kid who had come on, could do no wrong. He was high. Long in disgrace because of irregularities he admitted, Meade had been brought back to the saddle through the influence of E. R. Bradley and the trainers, and he was making a cash customers at Hialeah Park ago were betting on Meade, rather than on horses. He won such amazing consistency many of his followers cleaned out.

is a vastly different Don Meade one sees in the jockey room these days. Some went wrong this season. He sobered and chastened young Meade has been winning, and crowd has turned against him. He has been reinstated by the jockey club, but he hasn't exonerated by the public. It is a long time before he is, for. The knowledge probably affected his riding.

Results of Ski Meet at Placid

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP)—Bjorn Lie of New York city's Norsemen's Club and Roland Chivers of the local Sno-Birds renewed today their rivalry for the ski meister trophy in the 19th annual Lake Placid Club invitation men's ski tournament.

Lie won the Class B jumping contest yesterday and placed third in the cross country, after taking a slalom fourth Wednesday. Chivers, who already had a slalom third and a cross country second, was eighth in the jump.

Today's final event in the three-day test was a mile and a half downhill race on the Whiteface mountain trail.

Torger Tokle, Norwegian jumping sensation, maintained his record of no defeats this year by winning the Dunn ski jump trophy with leaps of 67 and 68½ meters (about 217.5 and 222.5 feet) on Intervales Hill.

Lie captured the Beck trophy for the combined events—cross country and jump—just edging out Chivers.

Harold Doerr, White Plains, and Gordon Clement, Middletown, captured jump honors in the Norsemen's Club's annual junior contest at Salisbury Mills.

Doerr, representing the Norwilt Club, soared 16½ and 16 meters for first in the 11-15 year division, while Clement leaped 13 and 15½ meters to win the 16-21 year class.

Arnold Berge, Hyde Park veteran, set a new junior hill record with a 65-foot exhibition jump and later placed in the veterans' class with 18½ and 17½ meter leaps. Mrs. Ashland Langsette won the women's slalom race.

Excellent Skiing In New England

Boston, Feb. 23 (AP)—Recent heavy snowstorms which brought woe and weak backs to the stay-at-home city dweller produced the best skiing conditions of the winter on New England hills.

The long week-end, which for many started with Washington's birthday, brought another program of high-class winter sports. The chief attraction will be the national ski jumping championships Sunday on the huge take-off at Berlin, N. H., an annual competition which attracts the best jumpers in the country.

Crack college skiers will perform at the 21st annual winter carnival at Norwich University, Northfield, Vt.

There are carnivals also at Jaffrey, N. H., North Bridgton, Me., and Manchester, Vt. Men's downhill championships will be held on Mt. Greylock, North Adams, Mass., on Sunday, while men's and women's open slalom events are down for the same day at North Conway, N. H.

Of interest to sled-dog fans: The New England sled-dog racing championships, today through Sunday, at the Jaffrey carnival. . . . A chance to see how high school pupils have taken to skiing: The interscholastic meet at North Woonstock, N. H., Saturday.

News that the fight finally has found a home will have such a salutary effect upon the poor Finns it probably will cost the Reds another division.

Gene Sarazen Says Snead Is the Best

New Orleans, Feb. 23 (AP)—Gene Sarazen, the Connecticut farmer who has won every major golf title, made his 1940 tournament debut today with a shot at the $10,000 New Orleans Open and a volley at younger players "who are satisfied to finish in the money."

Sarazen named Slammin' Sam Snead of Shawnee, Pa., as the "outstanding present-day golfer." "He hasn't reached his peak yet," he declared "but when that man starts to win he's not going to win by only two strokes but by ten."

Sarazen played with an injured thumb suffered while working on his clubs in Augusta, Ga. That did not keep him from an individual score of 71, one under par, in yesterday's pro-amateur.

Twenty players will share in the purse, donated by Mayor Robert S. Maestri. A new champion will be crowned as Henry Picard, last year's winner, was kept at his Hershey, Pa., home by illness in the family.

Young Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., winner of three of the seven tournaments on the winter circuit, was considered the man to catch for $2,000 top money.

Along the way, Bobby added, "I want to win every tournament I won last year, and a couple besides that I missed."

He's playing on the boards now, despite the fact he doesn't like them, because he wants to prove once and for all that he is fully entitled to his No. 1 ranking.

"I've proved that outdoors," he explained, "both on grass and clay." Then he offered figures to back his claim. On grass he has won the Eastern, Southampton and Tri-State tournaments three times, has two legs on the Seabright Bowl, and has won once each at Longwood and Newport—not to mention his 1939 triumphs at Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

On clay he has won the national indoor title, he can become by winning the first player since Rene LaCoste to hold the indoor and outdoor championships at the same time.

From there, Riggs hopes to go on to add the clay courts and repeat in the nationals at Forest Hills.

"That's a hell of a record," said Riggs, with becoming modesty. "I don't know if even Tilden could match it. And if I win all three nationals this year—well, I know darn well Tilden didn't do that."

Riggs, who'll be 22 years old tomorrow, already has four tournament titles to his credit this new year. After losing to Don McNeill at New Orleans, Betsy Grant at Tampa and Henry Prusoff at Orlando, he came back to win at West Palm Beach, Pensacola, Miami Beach and Daytona Beach.

Experts Pick Lou Ambers 5-9 To Win Over Davis Tonight

Because most of the experts along Cauliflower Row think Al Davis must score a knockout to win, Lou Ambers, lightweight champion of the world is a 5 to 9 favorite in tonight's over-the-weight match at Madison Square Garden.

Ambers, tipping the beam at 139 for tonight's skirmish, has too much skill, experience and ring generalship to fall victim to one of Davis' Sunday punches, say those supposed to know their batters, and is expected to come through with a decision.

The lightweight champion has boxed welterweights before, including the hard-punching Jimmy McLarin, and never has been knocked out.

Those who are in Davis' corner bank on his dynamic left hook, one of the best among the lighter class fighters, to dump Ambers and earn the Brooklyn lad a scrap with Henry Armstrong, the welter king.

Davis shot into the limelight by defeating Mickey Farber in the Garden a year ago, and later knocked out Tony Canzoneri, winding up the fistic career of the popular Italian after he had started a comeback.

Mike Jacobs looks for a $60,000 gate tonight.

Planthaber Snows Under Naccarato

Fred Planthaber put on a real exhibition at the Kaslich academy last night when he defeated John Naccarato in a city tournament match by the overwhelming score of 100 to 24. The present pocket billiard champion of the city had a high run of 42, another run of 30 that was stopped by a scratch and completely outclassed Naccarato whose best run was seven.

Tonight Dave Brooks, who rates as Planthaber's chief threat in the tournament, meets John Canfield.

Fred Ball, Santa Clara quarter-back, didn't play a single minute in three years as a candidate for the varsity football team—but he's wearing a varsity letter.

Money Angle Enters Slaying

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—A few words about money, mumbled by attractive Frances Marks, 23-year-old bookkeeper, in the presence of a negro garage worker, offered detectives their first likely clue today to the identity of the young woman's slayer.

The girl's body was found yesterday morning in a WPA sewer excavation in Harlem's Little Italy a few blocks from the garage where she had worked late Wednesday night.

Detectives kept their own counsel, but Charles Adams, the negro garage worker, told the night watchman that Miss Marks had received a telephone call the night she was slain, and had muttered something about "that doctor" and "owing him money."

The name of the doctor and the names of a dozen persons, questioned until dawn today, were withheld by the police.

Miss Marks, who had left her home on the lower East Side eight months ago to "do better things" than work in her father's market, was liked and respected by everyone who knew her, detectives said.

Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, chief medical examiner, performed an autopsy today to determine how she met her death—whether through strangulation or a blow on the head. Her hat and shoes were missing when her body was found, and she had only six cents in her handbag.

MACHINE GUN CREW COVERS WESTWALL REPAIRS

A censor-approved caption from Berlin identifies this businesslike machine gun crew as German soldiers ready to blaze away at the enemy should attempts be made to interrupt other Nazi soldiers making repairs in the German lines along the Westwall.

Two Cars Involved In Two Crashes; Several Are Hurt

State Trooper William Reynolds of the Ellenville station answered two accident calls last night and found the same cars involved in both. At 10 o'clock he was called to the vicinity of the Kelly Christian home in Napanoch and found that the Mercury sedan of Rufus L. Stowe of Wawarsing had apparently crashed into the rear end of a Ford truck owned by Charles F. Kimball of Holley Hill, Fla., and driven by William Bonesteel of the same address.

According to Trooper Reynolds, the drivers had settled their differences themselves, and he left them to report to his station. There were no injuries.

Upon returning he was detailed to investigate another accident in front of the Joseph Irwin service station in front of the entrance to the Napanoch Institution for Detention of Delinquents on state highway 209, leading to Kingston.

Arriving, the trooper found the same two cars had collided a second time, injuring four people riding in the Stowe auto. Rufus L. Stowe, 48, suffered cuts on the head and abrasions; his son, Thomas, 25, suffered from shock and bruises; Luther Roach, 27, shock and bruises, and Mrs. Stowe, cuts and bruises on the head.

All of the injured were removed to the Veterans' Memorial Hospital in Ellenville for treatment. They were released after first aid, except Mrs. Stowe, who remained at the hospital until this morning.

Trooper Reynolds said in his report that the Mercury car was badly damaged in the second accident and that the left rear wheel of the truck was smashed.

RUSSIAN BOMBS STRIKE SWEDISH TOWN

Sweeping across Finland, seven Russian bombers touched off a Russo-Swedish incident by dropping 30 to 40 bombs on the Swedish frontier village of Pajala (No. 3 on above map). Soviet forces hammered meanwhile at both ends of Finland's Mannerheim line (No. 1), but all was quiet in the sector above Lake Ladoga (2). The bombs set off several fires at Pajala, but none was killed.

VICTIMS IN 'ART GALLERY MYSTERY'

Milton B. Logan (left) was slugged and seriously injured, and John T. Geary (right) was a suicide in an "Art Gallery Mystery" that puzzled New York police. Both were indicted for a $65,000 fraud in connection with their operation of the American Art Association-Anderson Galleries. Police arrested John Poggi, Wall Street news vendor, and charged him with felonious assault in connection with the attack on Logan.

Brazil has the largest standing army in South America but Argentina has the largest number of trained reserves.
